

The Mohawk College Community Choir has become one of Hamilton's finest choral ensembles. Founded by Patricia Rolston in 1968 to participate in the opening of the college's Fennel Campus, the choir has grown into a 75 member semi-professional college/community choral society with singers from all walks of life who have their vocal talent and love of choral music in common. The ensemble performs a large variety of music – from chamber music to the greatest large scale works in the choral repertoire, often with orchestral accompaniment. The choir has performed with Symphony Hamilton, the University of Guelph Symphony and the Brantford Symphony Orchestra (premiering Alun Hoddinott's Bells of Paradise). The Mohawk College Community Choir has also collaborated with the McMaster University Choir and full orchestra performing Brahms' Ein Deutsches Requiem, Haydn's Lord Nelson Mass and Vaughan Williams' Dona Nobis Pacem. Concerts are held throughout the Hamilton, Dundas, and Niagara areas as well as on the Mohawk campus. New members are invited to audition every September and January.
